

TRANSCRIPT PREPARED BY THE CLERK OF THE LEGISLATURE
Transcriber's Office

January 19, 2000 LB 153

When he is in his inner sanctum, he doesn't invite the Legislature to come over there and sit down and get involved in what he's doing, but he tells the media what he's going to make his stooges in the Legislature do. On the matter of lethal injection, you all know that I'm going to try to put a lethal injection into that bill and I'll do everything I have to to do it. And he doesn't mind the session being brought to a halt, he has told you all that. Neither do I. Some people say that I have what amounts to a legislative veto which is not true, but let's pretend for the sake of discussion it is. Then it's a legislative veto versus an executive department veto. If his bill cannot get out of the Legislature, he cannot sign or veto it. I want him to have some things to think about. He's been told by somebody to use a steel fist and I want to let him know that if he thinks he's got a steel political fist he can put against my jaw, he's got a political jaw also. And I don't care about his title. All he is is a man to me, and a man ain't nothing but a man. And I'm a member of this Legislature and it, as the agency of government, as one of the three supposedly co-equal branches of government, is entitled to more respect than it gets from the Governor, the Attorney General and others. Now I cannot make all of my colleagues stand up into stars of manhood and stars of womanhood, and that is not my job. But I know how I'm going to comport myself and when he's going to take shots outside the Legislature in the newspaper, as though he can intimidate me, I guess I'm the only one he's aiming at because everybody else apparently is intimidated already by him, he's got another think coming. And he said on the lethal injection bill, I don't mind the inconvenience of a filibuster. What does he mean, inconvenience? He's not over here, he's not participating, but if he means what he said and a filibuster, as he calls it is a mere inconvenience, I'm willing to show that I will be kinder and gentler in my dealing with you all's Governor. I will give him what he has said he likes. I will give him his inconveniences. I don't expect him to thank me for it. When I do an act of charity, I don't do it to get thanks. I do it because it's the right thing to do. And in the same way that he thinks lethal injection is somehow a kinder, gentler way of killing people, I'm going to use a kinder, gentler way of dealing with him by giving him what he has said in the newspaper is a minor inconvenience but which he can stand, and will probably redound to his credit as a politician. He is really a
